¹ The UWEP took many critical steps to obtain this data. First, the community outreach specialist searched the websites for all high schools to identify the lead counselors. When this information was not clear (in about 2/3rds of the schools), she called the schools to obtain this information. She developed a database of high school lead counselors throughout Utah. Second, the director then emailed each counselor to ask them for the needed information. One month later the director emailed again. Third, University of Utah student employees (three) called each counselor to obtain the information on the phone (much of our information was from these calls) and then left messages. These students called each high school twice and left messages both times. Fourth, the director emailed the remaining high schools again. New contacts were obtained for some to attempt to get a response. Finally, the UWEP coordinator emailed the principal of each remaining high school, copying the non-responsive counselor. Another nine were obtained from this final attempt.
